

Own Your World

The Culture Wallet

Proof. Access. Permanence.

The Problem

Culture drives commerce — but creators still don't own their impact.

- Platforms extract value.
- There's no public record for cultural authorship.
- AI and deepfakes blur reality.
- Fans scroll, but don't belong.

In the flood of content, who gets remembered?

The Shift

1

From feeds → Worlds

2

From followers → Members

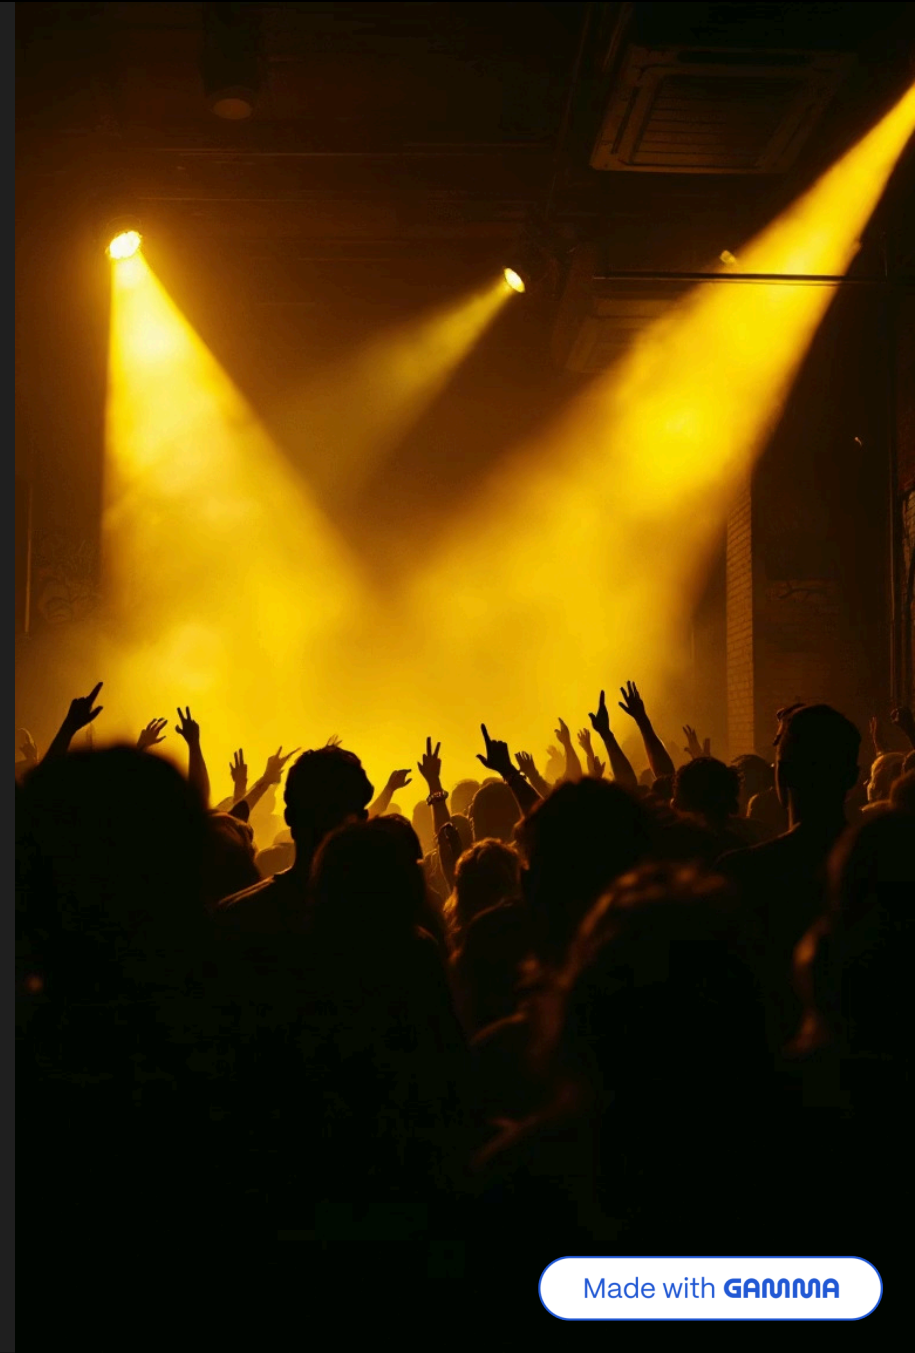

3

From posts → Proof

"A World is a sovereign cultural zone:

- Built by an artist, label, or movement
- Containing Drops, Passes, and Signals
- Anchored outside anyone's permission

Not a platform. Not a profile. A forcefield for origin and access."

What Is Culture Wallet?

The Culture Wallet is how you own your World.

It combines:

- A cultural ledger (proof-of-origin + impact)
- A digital vault (for artifacts + access)
- A reputation graph (via Passes + Signals)

You don't rent space in someone else's app.

You define your own territory — forever.

Every action is timestamped and verifiable — without asking permission.

How It Works

FOR CREATORS:

- Publish Cultural Artifacts (audio, video, moments, meaning)
- Issue Access Passes (control entry, create scarcity)
- Inscribe Proof (immutable, timestamped, undeniable)

FOR FANS:

- Follow Worlds
- Collect Passes
- Receive Recognition
- Participate in memory, not just media

Why Now

- AI is erasing authorship
- Deepfakes are distorting truth
- Screenshots are not evidence
- Platforms control narrative

The world is moving toward proof-of-origin and proof-of-impact.
Culture deserves a ledger.

Strategic Advantage

- No algorithm decides reach
- No custody over creator content
- No platform lock-in
- No crypto learning curve

It's called a wallet because it holds proof — not money.
It's infrastructure for culture.

Just culture, sovereign and timestamped.
The protocol for remembering who started what.

Real Usage & Market Fit

- Protect drops

- Activate cultural IP
